Data analyst

National average salary: $74,377 per year

Primary duties: Data analysts interpret information and figures to determine how it can be useful for companies. These analysts perform statistical analysis and typically focus more on short-term research and on finding alternative ways to improve data collection and reporting. Data analysts remain in demand because companies are constantly aiming to enhance their analytics capabilities.