Political Affairs Intern

Job Description
Join us in New York for an exciting internship with the United Nations Operations and Crisis Centre (UNOCC) 🌍, where you'll support senior leadership decision-making by analyzing and visualizing data, drafting briefings, and assisting in crisis management efforts. This full-time, unpaid position lasts 3 to 6 months, starting from October 2025 to September 2026, with options for a hybrid work arrangement. You should be pursuing or have completed a degree in political science, history, international relations, law, or a related field and have a strong interest in United Nations initiatives. You'll gain invaluable experience while collaborating with a dedicated team and enhancing your professional skills. The United Nations does not charge a fee at any stage of the recruitment process (application, interview meeting, processing, or training). The United Nations does not concern itself with information on applicants' bank accounts.
