Technical sales engineer

National average salary: $83,312 per year

Primary duties: Tech sales engineers sell technical products and offer post-sales support. They meet with clients, attend exhibitions and coordinate with production engineers. To improve products, tech sales engineers typically conduct market research and receive feedback from clients. This is a highly sought-after role because any company that sells technical products may benefit from hiring engineers who know how these technologies work and how to improve them.