Online Marketing Consultant

Brisbane, Queensland, Australia

About the job

Not everyone is looking for a traditional 9–5. Some are simply looking for something that fits better. A role that offers more flexibility, a different pace, and the ability to work from a virtual or portable office. We're currently opening up a small number of remote positions for individuals interested in stepping into a more flexible, growth-focused role.

About the Role

This is an autonomous position within the personal growth and leadership space, working alongside a global online education environment. The role centres around communication, connection, and guiding individuals who are exploring personal and professional development education. You'll be supported with structured onboarding and ongoing training as you build confidence in the role.

What You'll Be Doing

- Engaging with individuals via online platforms
- Having simple, guided conversations
- Sharing information about personal growth programs
- Using digital tools to manage follow-ups
- Continuing your own development alongside the role

What This Role Offers

- Remote position; work from a virtual or portable office
- Flexible schedule; part-time or full-time options
- Performance-based earning structure
- Step-by-step training and ongoing support
- A role that can evolve as you grow

Who This May Suit

- Individuals looking to start a new career path
- Those wanting more flexibility in how they work
- People who enjoy working independently
- Anyone open to personal growth and development

Important to Note

- This is a performance-based role
- Designed for those open to a non-traditional career direction
- Not suitable for students or visa applicants
- Must be authorized to work in Australia