Social Media Manager
Metzingen, Baden-Württemberg, Germany

About the job

Your Mission & Challenges

- You take full ownership of managing and developing our social media channels – LinkedIn, Instagram, YouTube, and X – from editorial planning and publishing through to community interaction.
- You develop your own recurring formats and content ideas that fit the NEURA brand, speak to our core audiences, and are tailored to each channel – and you bring them to life.
- You have your finger on the pulse: you monitor platform trends, algorithm changes, and communication patterns in our space – and translate them into concrete actions for our channels.
- You think strategically: you understand the strengths and audiences of each channel, continuously optimise how we use them, and position NEURA Robotics as a relevant voice in the global deeptech and robotics community.
- You get content out quickly and cleanly – with an eye for quality, design, and impact, without getting lost in perfectionism.
- You work closely with our Content Creator, provide input on formats and execution, and are the driving force behind editorial planning.
- You analyse the performance of our posts regularly, draw the right conclusions, and turn them into recommendations for strategic development.
- You spot opportunities for standout ideas – formats, campaigns, or moments that rise above the noise – and have the drive to execute them independently.

What We Can Look Forward To

- You bring several years of experience in social media management – ideally in a technology, deeptech, or innovation environment.
- You know LinkedIn, Instagram, YouTube, and X inside out: their mechanics, their algorithms, their possibilities – and their limits.
- You are creative and execution-strong: you do not just have ideas, you also get them onto the channel quickly and on your own initiative.
- You spot trends early, put them in the right context, and know what works for NEURA – and what does not.
